

2 THE HISTORY OF BLOODSTAIN PATTERN ANALYSIS	Page 1 of 2
 Division of Forensic Science   BLOODSTAIN PATTERN ANALYSIS TRAINING MANUAL 	Amendment Designator:
	Effective Date: 15-October-2004
  2 The History of Bloodstain Pattern Analysis    2.1 Objectives    2.1.1 To understand the evolution of the Bloodstain Pattern Analysis discipline.   2.1.2 To understand the work of early American Scientists who studied the Bloodstain Pattern discipline (Dr. Paul L. Kirk & Prof. Herbert L. MacDonell)   2.1.3 To understand the current status & developments within the discipline.   2.1.4 To understand the value of Bloodstain Pattern Analysis as it relates to Criminal Investigations.   2.1.5 To understand the role of the “International Association of Bloodstain Pattern Analysts”.    2.2 Methods of Instruction    2.2.1 Lecture/Discussion/Literature    2.2.1.1 The lecture and discussion will include historical information presented in the Literature References mentioned in Section 2.2.2     2.2.2 Literature    2.2.2.1 MacDonell, H. L., “Flight Characteristics and Stain Patterns of Human Blood” and “Bloodstain Pattern Interpretation”, Washington, U. S. Department of Justice, LEAA, N.I.L.E.C.J., 1971   2.2.2.2 Eckart, W.G. and James, S. H., Interpretation of Bloodstain Evidence at Crime Scenes, New York, Elsevier, 1989   2.2.2.3 Bevel, T. and Gardner, R. M., Bloodstain Pattern Analysis, New York, CRL Press, 1997   2.2.2.4 MacDonell, H. L., “Segments of History in the Documentation of Bloodstain Pattern Interpretation” Segment 00: Literature through the 1800’s IABPA Newsletter   2.2.2.5 MacDonell, H.L., “Segments of History in the Documentation of Bloodstain Pattern Interpretation” Segment 01: 1901-1910 IABPA Newsletter   2.2.2.6 MacDonell, H.L., “Segments of History in the Documentation of Bloodstain Pattern Interpretation” Segment 02: 1911-1920 IABPA Newsletter   2.2.2.7 MacDonell, H.L., “Segments of History in the Documentation of Bloodstain Pattern Interpretation” Segment 03: Literature from 1921-1930 IABPA Newsletter    2.2.3 Evaluation/Assignment   2.2.3.1 Read the four segments prepared by Professor Herbert L. MacDonell (2.2.2.4 – 2.2.2.7). Choose three events that are felt to be are significant to the advancement of bloodstain analysis. Describe thoroughly what challenges and advantages these events will have in bloodstain analysis.

2 THE HISTORY OF BLOODSTAIN PATTERN ANALYSIS	Page 2 of 2
 Division of Forensic Science BLOODSTAIN PATTERN ANALYSIS TRAINING MANUAL 	Amendment Designator:
	Effective Date: 15-October-2004
 2.2.3.2 Discussion Period (question/answer) 2.2.3.3 Literature Study – Prepare a paper on a particular aspect of Bloodstain History. ◆End 	